False Alarm Costs $75

In addition to two nights already spent in jail, 26-year-old Ruben Connelly, 1026 Johnson, was sentenced in city police court yesterday to a fine of $75 or a month in jail for ringing in a false fire alarm.

Magistrate William Ostler told Connelly he had carried on in "a stupid manner" and that his offence was "quite inexcusable and indefensible on any grounds."

GENERALISSIMO FRANCO ... usurper of power?

Spanish 'Rebels' Grilled

MADRID (AP)—Three liberal monarchists active in a budding opposition to Generalissimo Franco were rounded up for a long talk at national police headquarters Wednesday. They were questioned for five hours, then freed.

The incident was believed to be the result of a hotel banquet last Thursday where formation of the Spanish Union, a widely-based group of republicans and monarchists, was announced. All parties except Franco's Falange are banned in Spain.

Picked up at their homes were Joaguin Satrustegui Fernandez, a wealthy, 46-year-old industrialist; the Marquis de Cassa Arnuo, and Mariano Robles y Romero Robledo, grandson of a crown minister of 50 years ago.

Satrustegui, chief speaker at the banquet attended by army officers, lawyers and writers, criticized the government's economic policy and charged Franco had usurped power and maintained his regime by force.

The Spanish Union was first formed last spring by a group of right-wing Roman Catholic monarchists and a handful of liberal monarchists, both seeking to restore the monarchy.

Its regulations have since been revised to permit entry of all liberal monarchists and republicans willing to accept the restoration as better than the Franco regime.
